The movies changed important character traits.

Time Travel

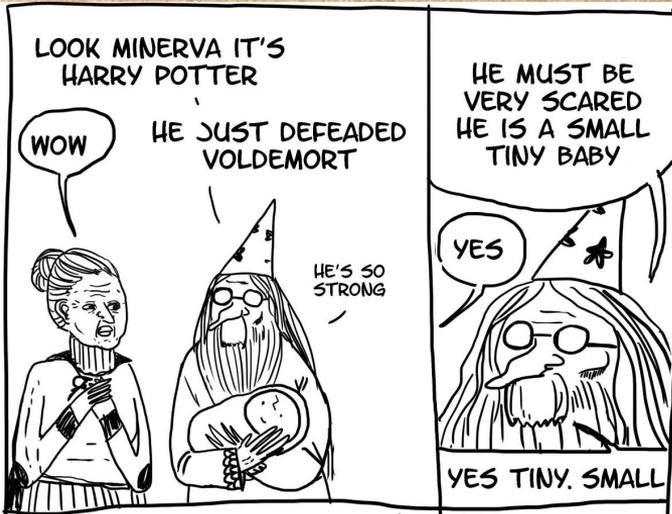

- ❑ Achieved through the use of a time turner
- ❑ Hermione uses it to do hours over and take more classes
- ❑ Harry and Hermione use it to save Sirius and Buckbeak
- ❑ The time turners were all destroyed in the Battle at the Ministry
- ❑ Novikov self-consistency principle (a real world principle) for short trips
 - ❑ Nothing can be changed because anything a traveller does merely produces the circumstances they had noted before travelling
- ❑ Long trips cause catastrophic changes including over aging, causing people to become “unborn” and time to behave erratically for a short period

House Elves

- ❑ Most likely based on British folk creature the Brownie (or Broonie)
 - ❑ Perform household tasks mostly at night
 - ❑ Usually associated with wealth
 - ❑ Some are motivated by friendship and will do extra tasks outside of house work
 - ❑ Will leave if presented with clothing
 - ❑ Paid with food
- ❑ Why is Hermione the only one to actively defend them?
 - ❑ House elves genuinely love their work and take great pride in it
 - ❑ We only see the terrible treatment in situations that make it clear it is terrible
 - ❑ Is it even Hermione's place when they don't want her help, never asked for her help, and are actively offended by her help?

Why I like Harry Potter

- ❑ Mary told me I couldn't read it, so I did
- ❑ I like the fantasy genre
- ❑ I like extensive world building
 - Harry potter has a universe that feel lived in, and like it continues to exist when you aren't following Harry, or even reading
- ❑ You can relate to just about everyone in my age group
- ❑ It never felt condescending, as I matured the themes matured

i bet at the abc family headquarters just has a big red button on a wall labeled "harry potter marathon" in big letters

And there's a sign next to it that says "It has been [17] days since our last harry potter marathon"

The higher that number is, the more uneasy the employees feel.

#I think it's time to push it again says one of the employees
